

Interested in battery storage but concerned about cost? Go modular...

David Stevenson, Mole Energy

Home batteries are brilliant.

Make your solar panels work harder for you and save even more on rising energy bills.

It's easy to see why so many customers choose to add a battery to their new solar PV systems. But until now, the cost of batteries has stopped some of our customers from investing and realising the full potential of their home solar PV.

Not anymore.

Introducing the myenergi libbi

The latest addition to our home battery range is a flexible, cost-effective option. The libbi can be included with any new home solar PV system and has the added bonus of an in-built inverter.

What makes the libbi special is its modular design. You start with one 5kWh battery and add more, as your budget allows.

For context, 5kWh of storage is enough to light a three bedroom home for six days or allow you to watch TV for 89 hours. The libbi also boasts:

- Optimisation controls. This is managed via a smartphone app and makes intelligent decisions about when to store or discharge energy, based on your requirements and the performance of your solar panels. The libbi can store energy from the National Grid, at times when energy is cheapest, or from your solar panels; ready to power your home when electricity is at its most expensive.
- A ten year warranty. This applies to the battery module. The in-built inverter includes a five year guarantee.

Up to four battery modules can be stacked together, for up to 20kWh of storage.

Perfectly priced

The 5kWh libbi battery is perfect for anyone with lower energy usage or a limited budget. With the inverter already included, it's possible to have home solar and battery storage from £12,000* - zero rated VAT - if purchased at the same time.

Time to become energy independent, with the myenergi libbi.
